► FAST-PACE ACTION THEME Join the challenging fight against the evil forces that threaten the world. Along the way, you will traverse through turn-based battles where you command monsters, or fight thousands of crowds of monsters in real-time. In other words, it's fast-paced action with a unique theme where you can join all of your old friends to restore their lost memories. Do you still remember when a big-breasted woman got drunk and got into a fight at a disco in the 1980's? The U.N. Grand Assembly of Elden Lords is the perfect opportunity to give it a go! ► Turn-Based Battles In a turn-based battle, you do not play against an enemy in a fight, but rather make your own enemy. Instead of the typical hit-and-run tactics, a chain of chain reaction is possible, and the fight will unfold with new components placed on the battlefield according to your strategy, so there is always the new twist that you can anticipate. ► Exciting 3D Environments with High Chaotic Difficulty Every battle occurs in the detailed environments that make you feel as if you are in a real 3D game. Your sword and magical attacks will change your attack according to the terrain. A simple one-to-one matching of the environment will provide you with a satisfying variety, as if it's a virtual toy town. In addition, the breadth of the view will easily deceive you, allowing you to get a feeling of wide-angle. ► Strong Link Generation Bring your own friends along on your journey and enjoy a lush online experience! With an enhanced permission feature, up

Q: How do I create multiple container instances for the same class of objects? I'm creating a javascript application that creates boxes of boxes (it sounds confusing I know) within another frame, and was wondering how to go about it. The way I want it to work is the user clicks on a button, the game sends out a request to a server, and sends back an array of objects with a list of items which I then create in the document. After which I'd then create boxes in the array and display them in the document. The catch is that each box will have a maximum and minimum limit (say 1000 objects for now). This limit was just a guess on my part. The real issue is that eventually the limits could be variables, like 1000 objects. Take this example: {value: 1, limit: 1, max: 1} {value: 1, limit: 1, max: 2} {value: 1, limit: 1, max: 3} {value: 1, limit: 1, max: 1000} {value: 1, limit: 1, max: 2} {value: 1, limit: 1, max: 3} {value: 1, limit: 1, max: 1000} ... It's easy enough to just do this: function saveThings(data) { var results = data; } var test = {name: "tester", limit: 10, max: 10}; var test1 = {name: "tester", limit: 10, max: 10}; ... saveThings([{\limit: 10, max: 10}, {\limit: 0, max: 10}]) saveThings([{\limit: 0, max: 10}, {\limit: 10, max: 10}])

saveThings([{\limit: 10, max: 10}, {\limit: 10, max: 10}])
saveThings([{\limit: 10, max: 10}, {\limit: 10, max: 10}])
saveThings

condolences.... What a sad news, I have know Elden Ring since the first version of Shiny Trunks. I cannot believe that people make profit with the game... I hope one day it will be possible to create this game without money and people could play it without worries... I don't really get this game, why would you translate it to english. The game has been out for ages. I don't even think the devs updated any of it since, it seems to remain unfinished. It's making people's 3ds seize, the game hasn't been released on the eu ean and japan regions yet. Which is a shame really, because the game was an instant buy for me when it first came out, and now its just a bad experience for me. It seems like a lot of mr money were put in the f-up of this game, and since it's been out for ages and it hasn't been updated...surely it deserves a sequel, or maybe even a remake
