. Entering Photoshop's interface. Photoshop is a raster image editing program, which means that it manipulates pixels for images, layers for objects, and paths for precision paths. Raster image software has almost always taken precedence over vector-based (or vector-based) image software for two reasons. First, raster image software is far more powerful, since it is not restricted to creating or manipulating paths, as vector software is. Second, raster software is easy to use since it is already accustomed to processing digital, pixel images and interpreting their colors, whereas the ambiguous, grid-based flow of lines does not make for as intuitive a mechanism of operation. However, raster software has its drawbacks, as well, in that it requires far more memory storage than vector software and much more time to process and process images. Photoshop basic interface. Jill Butler's Overcoming Obesity August 13, 2011 When her daughter was born, Jill Butler's OB-GYN told her, "Jill, you are the perfect size to have a baby." And that's all she wanted to hear. Butler, a registered nurse, became a mother at 35, and it was her dream to do so. That was 20 years ago. Today, at 39 years old, Butler is 52 pounds heavier than she was 20 years ago. She'd been making an effort to trim down, eating fewer calories and working out more. She even took a weight-loss contest for nurses for inspiration, adding goals to shed 20 pounds in nine months. That was in 2003. Now, in 2011, with a child in college and a new husband who juggles work and a growing family, her efforts have hit a wall. "I've been talking to so many of my friends who are struggling with the same thing," Butler said. "I need to do something." BURN FAT FIRST For Butler, the first step was a crash diet. After a very disciplined week of eating, she started to lose weight. Then, last month, she went to the dentist, and he drilled a cavity in her tooth. "I felt my stomach drop," Butler said. "I thought I was going to puke." As she leaned over, her belly stuck out so far that she couldn't lean back. Immediately, she got on the internet and bought 2 million dollars worth of the most expensive diet products known to man. The problem? When she stopped taking the products, she started to put on weight. "I was in the worst panic," Butler said. "I felt like I ate more than usual, and I knew it had to be the diet I was on." Looking for answers, she found a science news blog called GiveWell. On the page was an organization she'd never heard of - the Alliance for a Healthier Generation. Butler was introduced to its founder, Blair Haselton, a busy mother of three and co-founder of The Nurture Project. Butler, Haselton tells Newsy, became a good fit, with her passion for science and desire to help others improve their health. After Butler started taking Advantage Cleanse, she says she lost eight pounds in three weeks. MELANIE DOBRY-SCH
