Titler Live 4 Broadcast Crack Key Full [Win Mac].Q: How to apply the class multiple times in CSS What I want to do is to apply the class twice to an element. So I would apply it like that in CSS: .red,.green { color: red; } I'm using that to show a lot of different messages on my website. The problem with that is that all messages are the same color when you look through the website. So I want to style the elements red, green, etc... not for each message. I have tried doing that with a class: [class*="red"] { color: red; } [class*="green"] { color: green; } [class*="blue"] { color: blue; } But that doesn't seem to work. When I take a look into my inspector the class is applied to all my elements. How can I achieve that? A: You should use ~ selector instead of [class*="red"]: .red, .green, .blue { color: blue; } .red ~.red, .green ~.green, .blue ~.
